

With sultry vocals, big beats and oscillating rhythm, UK-based Palestinian and American artist Lana Lubany is an alt-pop new comer yet already viral sensation. Now based in London, Lana is the next generation of bilingual artists (inspired by Rosalia and Kali Uchis). Her music leads the way in bridging the gap between the West and the Middle East, writing and singing in both English and Arabic.

Bridging a gap between the West and the Middle East thanks to her Palestinian roots, American-Palestinian UK based singer songwriter Lana Lubany brings a whole new sound to today's Avant-pop scene. Drawing inspiration from the likes of Rosalía and Billie Eilish, her music blends traditional Arabic and English vocals with modern self-directed electronic production creating unique, bilingual pop music. Lana Lubany's unique sound has already found support from The Guardian, NME, The Line of Best Fit, The FADER, Alfitude, Reflector Mag, Disco Naivete, Notion, F Word and received plays from BBC Introducing.
